JUST RIDIN’ IN THE RAIN

By Officer Gary McGlaughlin
Sacramento Police Department (CA)

Like it or not, we all have to ride in the rain. Our job doesn’t stop because of water and if you fall, most likely you will slide with only minor damage to your body. After reading an article by Ron Kiel in the January/February 1998 issue of Bicycling magazine, I have compiled the following information about riding in wet weather.

Cornering. Rounded, sweeping turns will be the safest type of turns. Always use gradual, not jekky, movements. During the turn, move your pedals to the 12 and 6 position and press harder on the outside 6 o’clock pedal. This will do two things: one, it will lower your center of gravity; two, it puts more weight on the tire which gives you more rubber on the surface for better traction.

Brakes. Because of water on the rims, it will take up to two or three revolutions to clean and clear the rim and brake pad. Prior to these revolutions, this could potentially make your quick stops and speed reduction twice as long.

Urban Dangers. If you work in city areas, there are dangers that off roaders don’t experience. These dangers come in the form of obstacles such as any painted surfaces, lane lines, and crosswalks. The paints that are used by the city and county are a mix of paint and plastic which they have to apply with a flame torch to get it to stick. This creates an enormous hazard for bikers, since the plastic makes the paint extremely slick.

Other things to watch out for are metal items such as manhole covers, drain grates, and railroad tracks. Should you get caught on a bad surface, straighten up your bike, then once you’re back on a better surface, you lean it over to finish the turn.

Toting Firearms and Equipment on Airlines — A “How To” Guide

By Officer Kirby Beck
Coon Rapids Police Department (MN)

Unlike Police on Bikes conferences of years past, where IPMBA encouraged, but not always required, that attendees have their complete bike patrol uniform with them, this year, in order to participate in the mountain bike competitions, you must be in a complete uniform. That includes carrying your handgun. Stu Bracken wrote an article in the September/October ‘97 IPMBA News about his hassle with one airline trying to travel with his handgun. This will help you fly with your handgun to the conference in the safest, hassle-free and legal way possible.

Most officers, it is safe to say, have little experience traveling with their handguns on commercial airlines. Those who do understand the rules. Those of you who don’t may be surprised to learn that carrying a badge will do little to impress the staff at the airline booth. Unless you are planning on carrying the weapon on your person in the aircraft, the rules are essentially the same for everybody. As for carrying your weapon on the plane, this newsletter

IPMBA Notes 13
As we close in on the eighth annual Police On Bikes conference in Tacoma I look back on this past year as chair of the governing board and wonder how Allen Howard ever did this job for so many years. Let me tell you folks, this is truly a full-time job! Actually I’m looking back on those eight years I’ve spent in this association and realizing how it’s been such a big part of my everyday life. So it’s with some sadness that I realize I’m writing my last Chair’s column.

I say ‘some sadness’ because I know it’s time to move on and allow new blood to take a turn at guiding IPMBA along the road to greater success and, as a founding member, seeing that happen will be very gratifying. My promotion to lieutenant has kept me off the street more than I would like and I firmly believe that “working bike cops” should run the organization. So from that perspective I’m stepping aside, but I’m not leaving. I will always be an LAPD/IPMBA member.

I open every PC Course we do at my agency with a brief history and the benefits of our organization to the prospective and current members in the class. And I tell the students that they must earn the “special status” of bike patrol officer. I impress upon them that it’s more than swinging a leg over the bike and tooling through your beat; it’s more than donning the cool uniform and helmet, it’s more than being a member of a national bike patrol organization. It’s living the role day in and day out: “walking the walk and talking the talk.” It’s being knowledgeable and capable in the performance of your bike patrol duties.

Bike patrol officers are special people because few in our profession will do what we do. Sure, there’s the other “special ops” groups in police work (many are also cyclists), but most don’t do that special job every day like we do. It takes dedication to ride a bike each and every tour of duty instead of cruising in that air conditioned/heated squad car. Sweat is part of the job not an annoying by-product of ‘having to work outside’ in the heat. Cold and numbing extremities are more a case of night theft patrols than of being stuck directing traffic in mid-winter (although we do that too). I think you get my drift.

Associating with so many ‘special people’ these last seven or eight years has personally enriched me. Specifically the original members of the (then) LAW “Police on Bikes Committee” in 1991, our past and present Directors, the civilian employees of the League and, most importantly, the members of the Governing Board(s) and the Education Committee of IPMBA, without whose leadership this organization would be a distant memory.

If the membership only knew of the marathon board meetings we’ve had, arguing issues for hours on end and refusing to give up until the best solution for the organization was realized. (Actually we often wished we had them on videotape because there were many hilarious moments as well). There is a great chemistry about what dedicated officers set their minds to accomplishing a task for the good of all. IPMBA is a shining example of that notion and is what I will most remember about my years on the governing board.

Lastly, but certainly not least, it would be incomplete to say good-byes and thanks without saluting our cadre of PCIs who work to keep IPMBA strong by inculcating our tenets in new riders every week. It is by your efforts that the organization will remain strong well into the future. And to all of our members I thank you for your support in the many ways that you have contributed to IPMBA’s mission both locally and on the national level.

I am most honored to have served as your Chair and most grateful for the opportunity to be among those “walking the walk...” Thank you. See you all in Tacoma! Stay safe - Lt. Tom Woods
IPMBA’s Product Purchase Program

The following companies have agreed to be included in the IPMBA Product Purchase Program (PPP). In order to purchase items from these companies, you must offer some sort of guaranteed payment, like a certified check, MasterCard, Visa, etc. The particular requirements for each of the participating vendors are listed below. The use of purchase orders may eliminate the discount. Have your IPMBA membership number ready. Keep your IPMBA membership current and watch for the Product Purchase Program column in each IPMBA News for new Purchase Program members. We’ve added Phoenix Trading International and Bike Control to this month’s PPP. As this program continues to grow, we will have to limit the space taken up for this column in the future. Please save this and all future issues of IPMBA News to keep yourself up-to-date. Any questions or suggestions can be forwarded to IPMBA News c/o Jennifer Iorlan at LAIipmmba@aol.com.

Dear Editor:

I am looking for bike patrols that work in conjunction with buses. I work for the Alameda County Sheriff Office, A.C. Transit Police Services Section. We are looking to propose a bike patrol and use rapid transit as the main focus for getting around.

I am looking for success stories and departments that can help me get this project going.

Dear Editor:

I would like to announce in the IPMBA Newsletter my promotion to University Bicycle Patrol Coordinator. My name is Sgt. Paul Landstrom and I have worked with the City University of New York (CUNY) Public Safety and have been assigned to the bike patrol since 1993 and an IPMBA member since 1994. We have about 100 officers on 10 of 21 campuses.

As Coordinator I will oversee all aspects of training and operations. I am IPMBA MOCC certified and have a PCIC and hopefully will soon be a full PC1, so that all of our training will be IPMBA related.

I am proud to be an IPMBA member and promote it as often as possible. I am excited to let other members know what I feel my IPMBA membership has helped me achieve.

Dear Editor:

From October 20, 1997 through October 24, 1997, I had the opportunity to attend an IPMBA Police Cyclist/PAT Course, given at the Metro Dade Police Department. The course was taught by instructors Dominic Angiolillo, Al Simpson, Tony Valdez, and instructor-candidate Carlos Rosero. I’d like to commend these persons in their knowledge and teaching techniques. I have been a police instructor for over 12 years, teaching courses at the academy and at the in-service level. I have also attended many police and supervisory related training courses. I can’t remember having attended a course where I got more out of it.

Although I performed well on the road and written tests, I discovered that I had cone-a-phobia, fear of those stupid orange cones. Al and Dom took the time to help me through my “condition” and I passed without a problem.

My congratulations to these persons and to IPMBA for developing such a fine program.

HELPFUL INFORMATION

By Sgt. Terry Howell
University Medical Center (SC)

“So you’re a bicycle patrol officer, that must make you an expert on bicycle safety.” How many of us have heard that statement before?

Just because you ride a police bicycle on the job, everyone expects you to be a resource for safety information. When your supervisor gives you the assignment to go speak to the first grade at the local elementary school, where do you go? Where do you find information to share with schools and community groups?

The Safety information in the International Police Mountain Bike Association’s The Complete Guide to Police Cycling or John Forester’s Effective Cycling are certainly relevant but hardly on the level of a six year old. The following are some suggestions to where you can go to find good resources for information targeted to younger cyclist:

Think First-the National Brain and Spinal Cord Injury Prevention Program. On line at www.thinkfirst.org. THINK FIRST Foundation 22 S. Washington Street, Park Ridge, IL 60068. E-Mail: thinkfirst@afsms.org; Phone: (847) 692-2740; Toll Free (800) Think56; Fax: (847) 692-2394.

Need Resources?

Where to find bicycle safety information.

- Adventure Cycling. On line at www.advcycling.org. Adventure Cycling Association, P.O. Box 8308, Missoula, MT 59807. (406)721-1776 (voice); (406)721-8754 (fax); E-mail us at ACABike@aol.com.

- The League of American Bicyclists. On line at www.bikeleague.org. The League has a program called “Kids I” that teaches adults how to teach kids. Call (202) 822-1333 and ask for Craig.

These are just four organizations working to educate and prevent serious injuries and deaths by targeting high risk groups at an early age. I have been invited to talk with some of these groups about our bicycle patrols efforts to reduce accidents in the community and offer advice on their programs. These organizations are good resources for you to tap into to obtain information to help your community policing and bicycle education efforts. Another source of information and materials is your State Department of Transportation. They often have brochures or other literature you can get for free or at a minimal cost. I’m sure there are many other state and local organizations that you may know about to share the knowledge with the rest of us. Send us the names of organizations in your areas to IPMBA News and we’ll publish them so other officers can utilize the resources and maybe save one more life.

EDUCATION COLUMN

Well, here it is. My last Education Column. I can’t help but think back to the ’92 Las Vegas and the ’93 Ft. Lauderdale conferences. In 1992, IPMBA was truly in its infancy, just learning how to walk. There was no Police Cyclist Course and no PCIs. There were, however, people with enough foresight to see that police officers on bikes were here to stay and IPMBA was going to be the leader.

By the ’93 Ft. Lauderdale conference we had 10 instructors from all over the country to teach the first IPMBA Police Cyclist Course. Most of us had never met before, let alone taught together. Yet we worked together to make the course work. We’ve been going strong ever since. To Allen, Tom, Gary G., Joe, Stu, Kirby, Gary Mac and Andy Mac, thank you for committing yourselves all these years to building IPMBA into the biggest and best bicycle officer training organization in the world. It has been a great ride, but it is time for me to get off the train. For all of you that I’ve had the honor to meet and work with, thank you for your dedication and professionalism. The IPMBA membership has been my motivation for all these years as IPMBA’s Education Chair. I firmly believe that training saves lives. For all of IPMBA’s PCIs, make that your motto: “TRAINING SAVES LIVES.” Ride safe and God bless. — Gene Miller
Riding with your partner. Try to ride side by side, otherwise, you'll be subject to the rooster tail from the rear wheel. As your speed picks up the rooster tail gets bigger throwing up more water and road debris. This also occurs with the front wheel which will soak your shoes and lower pant leg. No shoes on the market will take this kind of constant soaking and keep your feet dry. You should have full size rear and front fenders to avoid water being thrown onto you.

Sprint. If one must sprint, remember, don't put too much weight over the front wheel or it will wash out. Try to keep a little weight back but remember then too much weight on the back will also cause the wheel to become too light then washout. As stated in "Cornering," use smooth movements and don't jerk the bike around.

Rainy day. Don't use the rain as an excuse to get a vehicle. Of course, there will be times that you want a vehicle (like the days of constant rain and flooding that we have received in California.) Otherwise, it's a good idea to ride in the rain and travel from call to call to learn how to keep the rubber side down. If you have a training day in the rain you can work on all of the above. As you work on your speed, listen to the bike: if the tires start to squirm, that means you're approaching the limits of traction.

Review and recommendations for wet weather riding.
1. Practice in wet weather—try to schedule a training day in rain
2. Have full size rear and front fenders to avoid water being thrown onto you.
3. Always remember to use smooth movements and don't jerk the bike around.
4. Remember that it will take up to two or three revolutions to clean and clear the rim and brake pad of water.
5. Keep an eye out for painted surfaces and metal objects.
6. Listen to the bike—it will warn you before you fall.
7. If you can, use soft rubber tires (I have found Avocet Cross-K tires to be the best for soft rubber.) Also, reduce your tire pressure somewhere between maximum and minimum—but watch out for pinch flats!
Ricin Warning:
Contact With Highly Toxic “Bait” Fatal To Officers, Others

The Department of Justice (VIA DOJ Riverside Lab - Art Young) has issued an Officer Safety Alert Bulletin, effective January 6, 1998. The alert was confirmed by law enforcement agencies and is being shared throughout law enforcement and intelligence communities:

This alert advises that a nationwide trend has developed among drug traffickers that is to “bait” law enforcement officers with a white powder called “ricin.” Ricin is a derivative of castor beans and looks like powder methamphetamine.

It is highly toxic, and if it contacts human skin, it is fatal. The death process takes several days, depending upon the dosage, and it is almost impossible to detect during an autopsy.

Forensic experts advise that if you field test ricin in the Scott Reagent Kit, it will foam and bubble extensively (if this occurs - EVACUATE IMMEDIATELY). The test will produce a gas that is very similar to mustard gas and can also be lethal if inhaled.

Ricin is 6,000 times more lethal than cyanide and there is no antidote. Symptoms of contact exposure to ricin are fever, cough, weakness, hypotension progressing to dangerously low blood pressure, heart failure, and death.

Due to this situation, in the event of suspected drug seizures, do not come into direct skin contact with any powdered substance and exhibit caution in field testing all powdered substances.

This alert should be shared throughout CDF’s law enforcement and emergency response system as this hazard may be encountered by CDF-Emergency Response personnel.

This could happen while responding to incidents involving methamphetamine labs, to fires in structures or vehicles that may house this substance, to traffic accidents involving transport of these substances, or to the medical aid of law enforcement or other emergency personnel that are exhibiting the symptoms from contact with this substance.

If any personnel encounter this situation, please take all necessary safety measures and report through the appropriate local and regional channels.

Well, it's been a nice ride. Effective at the conclusion of the Police on Bikes Conference, 1998 version, in Tacoma, Washington, I will be resigning from the Governing Board of IPMBA. Because of changes in my job description in Baltimore County and some additions and changes in my personal life, mainly my fourth kid, I will be leaving a year before I had planned. This column serves both as a good bye to a fantastic organization and a solicitation to our membership to get involved. There are a total of five openings on the Governing Board at this year's election, with two current board members running for re-election. It's time for some new blood, folks.

There is a tremendous amount of talent within our membership and I hope that some of this talent considers a run for the board. I was elected in 1993 to the Governing Board. As the rookie board member, I was accepted with open arms into the organization. With the bike cop pioneers that had started this organization, I walked in a little apprehensive on what I could bring to this organization. These guys had every reason to be a little egotistical because of what they had accomplished in the years before when they formed IPMBA and held their first two conferences. This was not the case at all. That is the point I want to make. Don't for a second think that you can't bring some knowledge to this organization. It is, however, a 12 month job. It's just not preparing for the annual conference, and then attending. It requires a little hard work year round. If you can put forth the effort it requires, then please run. We need an exciting election this year.

Now, in regards to my fellow board members. These are the best group of people I have ever worked with in law enforcement. From the retired board members, Allan Howard, Joe Martin and Gary Gallinott, to the existing board of Tom Woods, Kirby Beck, Stu Bracken, Gary McLauigin, Tom Northfell and Terry Howell, its a diverse but extremely dedicated group of individuals. Tom Woods is also retiring this year, which certainly deserves a tribute. Tom's extremely hard and dedicated work gave us meaning to our first name, International. In addition to all his work in this country, Tom's work in Russia and Africa has certainly spread the word of police mountain biking and put IPMBA on the globe. Another person worth mentioning is Gene Miller, our Education Committee Chair. Gene is also retiring from IPMBA life after this year's conference. Gene has certainly had a big part in professionalizing a lot of our programs. Between the board and the education committee, a lot has been accomplished in the past years. The Complete Guide to Police Cycling, now carried in Calibre Press publications, the expansion of the PC and PCI programs, the PCI/ID Course, the MOCC Course, the Emergency Medical Services Cycling Certification Course, and the Police Cyclist Advanced Course, to be held at this year's conference for the first time, have helped professionalize this organization. None of these programs would have been possible without the hard work and timeless dedication of Jennifer Honan, the Director of IPMBA. Because we are both in the Baltimore area, I have had the pleasure to work closely with Jennifer on many projects, especially IPMBA News. You could not fully appreciate the hard work that Jennifer does without visiting her in Baltimore. Jennifer deserves much credit for IPMBA's advances.

This organization has grown by leaps and bounds. With your help, it will continue to grow and flourish. Get involved...

doesn’t have enough space to print all the rules, requirements, training classes and jumppable hoops you have to satisfy to get permission. It is a very difficult thing for most officers, and going to a conference likely won’t qualify as a valid reason to be armed.

Start by understanding three basic things: 1. The weapon has to be unloaded; 2. It has to be secured in a hard case; and, 3. It has to be declared.

Weapons have to be unloaded fully, meaning that loaded magazine must be removed from the weapon. Magazines and ammunition can be stored in the same container, but it must be impossible for them to discharge in anything short of a fire or crash!

The weapon must be secured inside a hard, lockable container to which the owner shall retain the key. These may be somewhat hard to find, but gun shops and even office supply stores may have some containers or small document safes that meet the requirements. A soft sided and zippered gun case does not meet the FAA regulations. This container must be stored inside the luggage and will be checked into the belly of the aircraft. It cannot be in carry-on luggage.

Finally, the weapon must be declared to the agent checking your luggage. They will give you a tag to sign certifying that the weapon is unloaded and packaged as required. Most agents will not ask to inspect the weapon, but will merely take you at your word. The tag is then placed inside the bag containing the packaged firearm. There will be no “steal me” tag on the outside of the bag alerting baggage handlers or anyone else of the presence of the weapon. In the event of improper packaging and an accidental discharge you can bet that tag that you placed in the bag will be located and seized by Federal Investigators. If it’s not there you will undoubtedly have some serious explaining to do!

It is always best to check with the particular airline that you are flying with to ascertain the rules they expect you to follow. You don’t want to miss your flight arguing with the agent.

Lastly, be aware that the FAA strictly forbids the transportation of any chemical irritants on an airliner. This means that you cannot legally transport your OC spray, your CN spray, or any type of personal chemical irritant (Mace) inside an airplane whether it is in checked baggage or not. Airline crews aren’t equipped with gas masks if there is an accidental discharge or leak. This is a BIG violation. Leave your OC or Mace at home. You won’t need it at the conference.

These are the basic rules, just so you know them. They are easy to follow and live with. Moreover, your commission as a police officer won’t matter to the Feds if you decide that you want to break, bend or challenge these rules. Forewarned is forearmed.

INTERNATIONAL POLICE MOUNTAIN BIKE ASSOCIATION, SPRING 1998
The "COP"eition

Contributed by Sgt. Tom Northfell
Chicago P.D. (Il)

Mark your calendars and make plans to come to Chicago to compete in the 2nd Annual Police Bike "COP"eition, taking place during Mayor's Bike Week at noon on Saturday, May 23, 1998. The "COP"eition site for this year's event is Navy Pier, adjacent to Chicago's beautiful lakefront.

The "COP"eition consists of a timed obstacle course, requiring both bicycle handling skills and raw speed. Award categories are: Individual, Overall Team and "Best Crash!" Participants MUST be sworn police officers, in full uniform, and ride a department-issued mountain bike with full equipment. The post-event is a "BBQ and Brew."

There is no cost to compete in the "COP"eition, however, liability waivers must be signed at the "COP"eition site prior to competing in this event. Winner will be announced in a future issue of the IPMBA News.

To register, send your name, rank, agency, and phone number on department letterhead to: Sgt. Tom Northfell, Bicycle Patrol Unit - 153, Chicago Police Department, 1121 S. State Street, Chicago, Illinois 60605. Or fax to: (312) 746-6743. For further information call: (312) 746-8250

IPMBA News

PMBA wishes thank the following individuals for their dedication to IPMBA (but not say goodbye, because we hope to hear from you often): Lt. Tom Woods, IPMBA Chair from 1997 and governing board member since the beginning; Corp. Andy Macelwane, governing board member since 1993 and newsletter editor (and key player in our Product Purchase Program); and to Detective Gene Miller (congrats to the new detective!), who has been Chair of the Education Committee for six years. (And key player in all things educational.) You'll be sorely missed from the everyday workings of IPMBA! Have fun with all your free time, and don't be strangers to IPMBA News.

CONFERENCE NOTE: Trek USA will be selling conference bicycles at the conclusion of the conference at a reduced price. Come prepared to buy! Proceeds will benefit IPMBA. Also, if you're a first time conference attendee, make sure that you bring your wallet: vendors sell their goods throughout, and at the end, of the conference.
